

GALLIFORD TRY APPOINTED TO YORKSHIRE WATER £850M AMP8 FRAMEWORK

Galliford Try, the UK construction group, announces that its Environment business has been appointed to the complex element of Yorkshire Water's new Non-Infrastructure Works framework, covering the AMP8 delivery period (2025 - 2030).

The complex part of the framework is valued at £850 million, and is expected to be worth around £100 million to Galliford Try. The construction group will provide civil engineering, Mechanical, Electrical, Instrumentation, Control and Automation (MEICA) and building capability and expertise to identify, design and deliver options in accordance with Yorkshire Water's technical and engineering standards for all aspects of clean water and wastewater systems.

The announcement follows Galliford Try's recent appointments to the Southern Water Capital Programme Strategic Delivery Partner Framework and Wessex Water Capital Delivery Framework worth £500 million and £400 million to the business, respectively.

Bill Hocking, Chief Executive of Galliford Try, commented: "We have sustained a successful track record of winning places on these key water sector frameworks for the AMP8 period which are a driver of our Sustainable Growth Strategy. We look forward to working with Yorkshire Water on this new framework to deliver high-quality facilities that meet their customers' needs."
