III. MAJOR REASONS FOR THE ESTIMATED LOSS FOR THE PERIOD

In 2024, the recovery of the civil aviation market gained momentum. The Company seized market opportunities, made every effort to enhance efficiency, refined production organization to improve fleet efficiency, strengthened capacity and pricing controls to stabilize yield quality and implemented strict cost controls to promote cost savings. As a result, the Company's operating quality and efficiency continued to improve, achieving a significant reduction in losses year-on-year. However, amid an increasingly complex and volatile operating environment, intensified competition in the domestic market, heightened uncertainties in the international market and price fluctuations in factors such as oil and exchange rates, the Company remained in an operating loss position in 2024.
