As recommended by the AIC, net asset values are calculated on both a capital and a cum-income basis.

The Brunner Investment Trust PLC announces that at close of business 14 May 2025:

- 1) based on the par value of the company's long term debt and preference shares, the capital net asset value per ordinary share was 1392.75p.
- 2) based on the market value of the company's long term debt and preference shares, the capital net asset value per ordinary share was 1416.02p.
- 3) based on the par value of the company's long term debt and preference shares, the cum-income net asset value per ordinary share was 1407.00p.
- 4) based on the market value of the company's long term debt and preference shares, the cum-income net asset value per ordinary share was 1430.28p.

In the valuation of the company's long term debt at market value, the margin added to the yield of the relevant reference gilt is derived from the spread of BBB UK corporate bond yields over gilt yields.
