Buccaneer Energy Plc
("Buccaneer" or the "Company")
CEO Interview Highlights

Buccaneer Energy (AIM: BUCE), an international oil & gas exploration and production company with development and production assets in Texas, USA, is pleased to share a recent interview with Chief Executive Officer Paul Welch on ADVFN's Capital Compass.

The interview outlines Buccaneer's strategy of building a low-cost, cash-generative production base in Texas while progressing high-return growth initiatives across the Pine Mills Field.

Highlights:

- Current production of approximately 150 bopd, with management targeting the next operational milestone of approximately 250 bopd
- Free cash generation exceeded US 250,000 in the latest month at current oil prices
- Operating costs in the Fouke area are below US 5/bbl, supporting strong operating margins
- Organic Oil Recovery ("OOR") pilot demonstrated encouraging early production and reduced water cuts
- Fouke waterflood identified by management as the key driver of the next material increase in production and reserves
- Carlisle #1 acquisition delivering payback in under six months and IRR in excess of 80%

The interview also covers Buccaneer's focus on disciplined growth, strengthening cash flow and narrowing the gap between the Company's current market valuation and the underlying value of its producing reserve base, with Carlisle #1 demonstrating the type of high-return, cash-generative opportunity already being delivered.
