Plus500 Ltd.

("Plus500", the "Company" or, together with its subsidiaries, the "Group")

Plus500 partners with Wealthsimple, cementing its position as the B2B infrastructure provider of choice

Plus500, a global multi-asset fintech group operating proprietary technology-based trading platforms, today announces a strategic partnership with Wealthsimple, Canada's leading financial innovator, serving more than 4 million Canadians and holding C 150bn in assets under administration. The Group's institutional-grade infrastructure will power US futures access for Canadian retail investors, as its B2B partner ecosystem accelerates.

Under this partnership, Plus500 will provide its institutional-grade clearing, order routing and risk management infrastructure, the same proven technology that underpins its regulated futures operations in the US. The partnership delivers two strategic outcomes for the Group:

+ Wealthsimple's Canadian retail investor base will gain first-ever direct access to US futures contracts, delivered through Plus500's proprietary futures trading platform.

+ The partnership further strengthens a rapidly growing B2B ecosystem, with a strong pipeline of additional opportunities already in progress.

Wealthsimple's selection of Plus500 as its infrastructure partner reflects the Group's unique ability to deliver proprietary technology, CFTC-regulated clearing capabilities and proven operational infrastructure as a single integrated solution.

Building on its landmark appointment as clearing partner for CME Group and FanDuel's event-based contracts platform, its partnership with Topstep, and now Wealthsimple, Plus500 continues to expand its B2B partner ecosystem across futures, the combination that defines what best-in-class infrastructure looks like in the fastest-growing segment of financial markets today.

Further B2B announcements are expected as the Group's partner ecosystem continues to scale.
