III. Risk Analysis and Risk Control Measures of the Foreign Exchange Hedging Business

i. Risk analysis:

1. Market risk: in the case of large exchange rate fluctuations, losses may arise from the deviation of the exchange rate of the forward contract from the market spot rate on the maturity date of the contract;

2. Liquidity risk: it may be due to inaccurate forecasts that the delivery date signed by the forward is inconsistent with the actual delivery date, resulting in insufficient funds available for use at the time of delivery, which triggers the risk of fund liquidity and leads to failure to deliver as scheduled;

3. Credit risk: it may be due to inaccurate forecast, the delivery date signed by the forward is not consistent with the actual delivery period, resulting in the risk of delayed delivery caused by the forward foreign exchange transactions cannot be delivered according to the agreed time;

4. Operational risk: the risk may be caused by imperfect internal control mechanism and improper operation mode of operators;

5. Legal risk: the Company may face legal risks due to insufficient completeness of contract terms or disputes over jurisdictional terms.

ii. Risk control measures:

1. The Company conducts forward foreign exchange transactions based on scientific forecasts of forward foreign exchange demand in accordance with its business plan to meet operational needs, to avoid and prevent the impact of exchange rate fluctuations on the Company, and does not engage in speculative transactions;

2. With regard to the possible performance guarantee issues arising from foreign exchange derivative transactions, the business execution department of the Company has established a tracking mechanism to implement tracking management of the progress of business receipts and payments to effectively prevent the risk of default on delivery and ensure that potential losses are controlled within the minimum scope;

3. Through strengthening the training of business knowledge, the Company has enhanced the comprehensive business quality of relevant personnel and improved the ability to identify and prevent risks;

4. The Company has formulated the Foreign Exchange Risk Control Process, and the operators strictly follow the requirements of the system;
