

Innovent Biologics (1801 HK)

IBI363 advancing towards global development

Innovent reported 1H25 revenue of RMB5.95bn (+51% YoY), with product sales of RMB5.23bn (+37% YoY), achieving 51% of our prior full-year forecasts and exceeding our expectations. Sintilimab sales rose 15% YoY to US$275mn (per Eli Lilly), while new products—i.e. PCSK9 mAb and IGF-1R—drove product growth in 1H25. Profitability improved materially in 1H25, with non-IFRS net profit reaching RMB1.21bn and EBITDA amounting to RMB1.41bn, compared to a loss in 1H24. Under non-IFRS, gross margin expanded to 86.8% in 1H25 (vs 84.9% in FY24) and SG&A ratio fell to 44.2% (vs 50.9% in FY24), underscoring operating leverage. Mgmt aims to achieve non-IFRS EBITDA profitability in FY25 excluding the US$80mn upfront income from Roche. We forecast FY25 net profit of RMB997mn. As of Jun 2025, Innovent had a strong cash position of RMB14.6bn.

■ IBI363 (PD-1/L-2) progresses toward global Ph3 MRCT. IBI363 has demonstrated competitive PFS and survival benefit in IO-resistant sq- and nsq-NSCLC, as well as encouraging activity in cold tumors such as melanoma and MSS colorectal cancer (CMBI report, link). The recent FDA clearance to initiate a global Ph3 MRCT—comparing IBI363 (3mg/kg) vs docetaxel in IO-resistant sq-NSCLC—marks a key milestone in the asset's global development. In parallel, a pivotal Ph2 trial in 1L melanoma is ongoing, while a Ph3 trial in 3L MSS CRC is set to begin in 2H25 in China. Innovent is also advancing IBI363 into earlier lines of therapy, with Ph1b/2 PoC data in front-line NSCLC and CRC expected in 2026. Positive results could further validate IBI363 as a next-generation IO backbone. To broaden its clinical footprint, Innovent has also registered a Ph2 study in neoadjuvant NSCLC (1.5mg/kg) and initiated a bevacizumab combination trial in late-line EGFRm NSCLC and ovarian cancer. We also see IBI363's significant ADC-combination potential and scope for a sizable out-licensing deal.

■ Expanding ADC pipeline with strategic depth. Innovent is advancing a broad ADC pipeline, spanning monoclonal ADCs (i.e. CLDN18.2 and HER2), bispecific ADCs (i.e. EGFR/B7H3), and dual-payload ADCs (i.e. CEACAM5 dp), which are being developed with future IO combination strategies in mind. IBI343 (CLDN18.2 ADC) has entered into Ph3 trial in 3L+ PDAC in China, in addition to its ongoing Ph3 study in 3L+ gastric cancer. Innovent also plans to discuss with authorities regarding the start of a global Ph3 study of IBI343 in 2L+ PDAC, and is currently conducting a Ph1b trial of IBI343 in front-line PDAC.

■ Growing innovative pipeline in non-oncology. Following the launch of mazdutide for obesity in Jul, we expect a strong uptake in sales of the product in 2H25. We expect IBI311 (IGF-1R), IBI306 (PCSK9) and IBI112 (IL-23p19) to become important revenue drivers in Innovent's non-oncology portfolio. We would like to highlight IBI3032 as a differentiated oral GLP-1, demonstrating 5-10 times higher oral exposure than peers at the same dose, along with superior efficacy in an obese cynomolgus monkey model.

■ Maintain BUY. With strong results in 1H25, we revise our DCF-based TP from HK$102.95 to HK$109.48 (WACC: 9.0%, terminal growth rate: 4.0%).
